Prompt:

Originalized imperial order, Ottoman Empire, late sixteenth century: “Let the registers be checked so that provincial cavalry holders provide service when called. Let village revenues be recorded carefully, and let no official collect beyond what is written, lest the subjects abandon their fields.”

Which broader context best explains why Ottoman rulers issued orders like this?

- A) The disappearance of large agrarian empires after 1450
- B) The collapse of Islamic legal traditions in Southwest Asia
- C) The spread of plantation slavery to Anatolia
- D) The need to govern diverse populations across a large territorial empire

APWH-MCQ1-013

Section: MCQ

Type: mcq

Unit: Unit 4 — Transoceanic Interconnections

Period: c. 1450–1750

Theme: ENV — Humans and the Environment

Skill: Quantitative, Map, or Data Interpretation

Prompt:

Table: Estimated change in selected crops and livestock after 1500

Region | New introduction | Reported effect by c. 1700

West Africa | Cassava | Expanded cultivation in some forest zones

Andes | Wheat and sheep | New colonial estates and grazing lands

Europe | Maize and potatoes | Population growth in some rural regions

Which conclusion is best supported by the table?

- A) The Columbian Exchange affected only European diets.
- B) New crops and animals had identical effects in every region.
- C) American crops reduced agricultural production globally.
- D) Biological exchange reshaped environments and economies in multiple regions.

APWH-MCQ1-014

PART B — ANSWER KEY + EXPLANATIONS

APWH-MCQ1-001 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: The growth of a merit-based scholar-official system supported by printing and education — Explanation: The increase in degree holders, printed manuals, and schools points to the Song civil service examination system and scholar-official bureaucracy.

APWH-MCQ1-002 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: The use of Confucian classics as the basis for civil service examinations — Explanation: Confucian texts shaped the exam system and helped legitimize Song bureaucratic rule.

APWH-MCQ1-003 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The spread of woodblock and movable-type printing — Explanation: Printing made study materials more available, supporting education and examination preparation.

APWH-MCQ1-004 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: The commercialization and urban growth of the Song economy — Explanation: Commercial expansion and urban growth created demand for education, printing, and bureaucratic service.

APWH-MCQ1-005 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: The organization of maritime trade around monsoon wind patterns and port cities — Explanation: The map’s seasonal arrows and port connections show how monsoon winds structured Indian Ocean commerce.

APWH-MCQ1-006 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The presence of Muslim merchant communities in connected port cities — Explanation: Muslim merchant diasporas helped spread Islam through commercial and social connections.

APWH-MCQ1-007 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: The predictable seasonal reversal of monsoon winds — Explanation: Indian Ocean sailors depended on seasonal wind reversals to plan voyages.

APWH-MCQ1-008 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: They helped link distant ports through shared commercial and cultural practices. — Explanation: Diasporic merchant communities connected ports through trade, language, religion, and trust networks.

APWH-MCQ1-009 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: To strengthen imperial control over taxation and military obligations — Explanation: The order regulates revenue records and cavalry service, showing an effort to manage provincial obligations.

APWH-MCQ1-010 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: Use of bureaucratic records to manage revenue and service — Explanation: The passage emphasizes registers, recorded revenues, and official limits, all features of imperial bureaucracy.

APWH-MCQ1-011 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: The warning that subjects might abandon their fields — Explanation: The warning links excessive collection to agricultural disruption and peasant flight.

APWH-MCQ1-012 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: The need to govern diverse populations across a large territorial empire — Explanation: The Ottoman Empire needed administrative systems to manage varied provinces, subjects, taxes, and military obligations.

APWH-MCQ1-013 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: Biological exchange reshaped environments and economies in multiple regions. — Explanation: The table shows crops and animals moving across regions and changing agriculture, land use, and population patterns.

APWH-MCQ1-014 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: It summarizes broad patterns but does not show local variation or resistance. — Explanation: The table gives general outcomes but not the complexity of local responses or uneven effects.

APWH-MCQ1-015 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: The creation of colonial landholding and labor systems — Explanation: Wheat, sheep, estates, and grazing in the Andes were connected to Spanish colonial land and labor arrangements.

APWH-MCQ1-016 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Transoceanic connections created lasting changes in agriculture. — Explanation: The listed crop and livestock transfers show how oceanic exchange transformed agricultural systems.

APWH-MCQ1-017 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: The spread of Enlightenment ideas about natural rights — Explanation: The pamphlet uses the language of liberty and natural rights, central ideas in Atlantic revolutions.

APWH-MCQ1-018 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: “They cannot stop at the plantation gate” — Explanation: This phrase directly challenges the exclusion of enslaved plantation laborers from rights.

APWH-MCQ1-019 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: Plantation slavery in the Atlantic world — Explanation: Saint-Domingue’s revolutionary conflict was rooted in plantation slavery and Atlantic sugar production.

APWH-MCQ1-020 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: It used revolutionary language to challenge the contradiction between natural rights and slavery. — Explanation: The pamphlet applies natural-rights arguments to enslaved laborers, exposing the contradiction of revolutionary liberty in a slave society.

APWH-MCQ1-021 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Claims of progress could be used to justify coercive imperial labor systems. — Explanation: The image pairs coercive labor and armed guards with a caption praising progress, revealing imperial justification.

APWH-MCQ1-022 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: The extraction of rubber for use in industrial goods — Explanation: Rubber was a raw material demanded by industrial economies, encouraging imperial extraction.

APWH-MCQ1-023 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Steam-powered transportation and industrial manufacturing increased demand for raw materials. — Explanation: River steamers and rubber extraction reflect industrial technology and demand for raw materials.

APWH-MCQ1-024 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: The caption praising colonial rule as “order and progress” — Explanation: The caption frames coercive colonial rule positively, revealing imperial bias.

APWH-MCQ1-025 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: World War I drew colonial and imperial populations into a global conflict. — Explanation: The table shows soldiers and laborers mobilized from India, West Africa, and Ottoman Arab provinces.

APWH-MCQ1-026 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: The existence of large imperial systems that could draw manpower from many regions — Explanation: Empires mobilized colonial and provincial populations for war.

APWH-MCQ1-027 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: Total war required states and empires to mobilize human resources on a large scale. — Explanation: The table shows mass mobilization of soldiers and workers beyond home fronts.

APWH-MCQ1-028 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Increased demands for self-rule and political reform in some colonies — Explanation: Colonial wartime service often intensified postwar expectations for rights, reform, or independence.

APWH-MCQ1-029 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: To demand independence while avoiding domination by Cold War alliances — Explanation: The speech connects political freedom, economic control, and refusal to submit to either Cold War bloc.

APWH-MCQ1-030 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: “Control over our cocoa, our railways, our schools” — Explanation: This phrase directly identifies economic and institutional control as part of independence.

APWH-MCQ1-031 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: Nonalignment — Explanation: Welcoming friendship from all blocs while rejecting new masters reflects nonalignment.

APWH-MCQ1-032 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The speaker argues that formal independence is incomplete without political and economic self-determination. — Explanation: The speech says freedom must be more than a flag and must include control over resources and planning.

APWH-MCQ1-033 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: Containerization helped expand the scale and speed of global commerce. — Explanation: The sharp rise in shipping capacity reflects containerization’s role in global trade expansion.

APWH-MCQ1-034 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The growth of global supply chains — Explanation: Container shipping made it easier to coordinate production and distribution across regions.

APWH-MCQ1-035 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: Increased emissions and ecological pressures from expanded global transport — Explanation: Expanded shipping capacity is connected to fossil-fuel use, port expansion, and environmental impacts.

APWH-MCQ1-036 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: The spread of consumer goods and cultural products across regions — Explanation: The same global integration that expanded shipping also helped circulate goods and cultural products.

APWH-MCQ1-037 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: The use of administrative and religious systems to integrate Andean communities — Explanation: Roads, storehouses, labor obligations, and sacred landscapes show administrative and religious integration.

APWH-MCQ1-038 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: A record-keeping device or road system used to organize labor and tribute — Explanation: Such material evidence would illustrate administrative integration and labor organization in an Andean-style empire.

APWH-MCQ1-039 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: “Not only through armies” — Explanation: The phrase directly indicates that military force was only one part of state-building.

APWH-MCQ1-040 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: It summarizes general state-building strategies but does not provide the views of conquered communities. — Explanation: A secondary overview may explain structures while leaving out the perspectives of subject peoples.

APWH-MCQ1-041 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Multiple overlapping trade networks linked distant regions of Afro-Eurasia. — Explanation: The map includes caravan, maritime, and trans-Saharan routes connecting many cities.

APWH-MCQ1-042 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: The Qing Empire — Explanation: The Qing expanded into Inner Asia and used Central Asian and steppe political-military traditions.

APWH-MCQ1-043 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: An interest in caravan cities, safe routes, and commercial connections across Central Asia — Explanation: A Samarkand merchant would likely emphasize inland trade routes and caravan connections.

APWH-MCQ1-044 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: The expansion of European-sponsored transoceanic maritime routes — Explanation: After 1450, European maritime expansion altered global trade patterns and intensified transoceanic connections.

APWH-MCQ1-045 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: The granting of monopoly rights to companies or officials in overseas territories — Explanation: Chartered privileges and monopoly rights supported political and commercial power overseas.

APWH-MCQ1-046 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: A drawing of a cannon-armed ocean-going ship approaching a fortified port — Explanation: Armed ships were central to converting maritime mobility into coercive imperial power.

APWH-MCQ1-047 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: “Differed in institutions” — Explanation: This phrase directly frames a comparison between Iberian and Dutch imperial structures.

APWH-MCQ1-048 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: European states and companies competed for access to Asian, African, and American trade networks. — Explanation: The interpretation fits the broader context of European maritime competition after 1450.

APWH-MCQ1-049 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Nineteenth-century states used legal reform to address social and political pressures. — Explanation: The table shows different states adopting reforms in response to pressures from industrialization, empire, and modernization.

APWH-MCQ1-050 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: It lists reform trends but does not show how effectively reforms were implemented. — Explanation: A table of laws or trends cannot by itself prove enforcement or lived outcomes.

APWH-MCQ1-051 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Reform could occur in both industrializing and non-Western imperial contexts. — Explanation: Britain, the Ottoman Empire, and Japan show reform across different political and regional settings.

APWH-MCQ1-052 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: Industrial factory production and urban social criticism — Explanation: Child labor restrictions in Britain arose from industrial working conditions and reform criticism.

APWH-MCQ1-053 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: Industrial-era labor systems created regulated long-distance migration flows. — Explanation: The photograph description shows contracted workers, steamship travel, inspections, and return rules.

APWH-MCQ1-054 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Decolonization movements demanding political and social self-determination — Explanation: Decolonization challenged imperial systems that had regulated labor, mobility, and political rights.

APWH-MCQ1-055 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: Continued movement of workers across regions in response to global labor demand — Explanation: Modern labor migration continues the pattern of workers moving across regions because of global economic demand.
