APWH-MCQ10-037 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: African military organization and local terrain shaped resistance to imperial armies. — Explanation: The sketch shows Zulu tactical formation, messengers, terrain, and British rifles.

APWH-MCQ10-038 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: “Zulu regiments advancing in crescent formation with shields and spears, British troops near wagons and rifles” — Explanation: This detail directly contrasts military tactics and technologies.

APWH-MCQ10-039 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Knowledge of terrain and coordinated movement in a local environment — Explanation: Hills, dispersed units, messengers, and formation suggest terrain knowledge and coordination.

APWH-MCQ10-040 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: African states could use organized military systems to challenge industrial-era imperial expansion. — Explanation: The sketch emphasizes organized regiments, tactics, terrain, and communication.

APWH-MCQ10-041 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The postwar settlement involved nationalist conflict and forced population exchange. — Explanation: The map shows armies, burned towns, religiously defined population movements, and forced exchange.

APWH-MCQ10-042 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: “Compulsory movement of Orthodox Christians to Greece and Muslims to Turkey” — Explanation: This phrase directly shows state-backed forced displacement.

APWH-MCQ10-043 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The end of World War I and the breakup of multiethnic empires intensified nationalist border-making. — Explanation: The conflict followed Ottoman collapse and nationalist state-building in Anatolia and the Aegean.

APWH-MCQ10-044 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: It illustrates how nationalist state-building could involve coercive reclassification and displacement of communities. — Explanation: The map shows compulsory movement based on religious identity and new national boundaries.

APWH-MCQ10-045 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Technological and organizational changes helped reduce submarine threats to Allied shipping. — Explanation: Larger convoys, radar, sonar, codebreaking, and escort coordination reduced submarine effectiveness.

APWH-MCQ10-046 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: To promote collective security and a framework for oversight of dependent territories — Explanation: The statement emphasizes settling disputes by council and administering dependent territories with regard for their peoples.

APWH-MCQ10-047 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: “Territories not yet self-governing” — Explanation: This phrase directly refers to colonial or dependent territories.

APWH-MCQ10-048 — Correct: D — Correct Answer: The creation of global institutions that linked peacekeeping with debates over self-government — Explanation: The statement reflects post-1945 international organizations addressing both peace and dependent territories.

APWH-MCQ10-049 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: Space technology became a field of superpower competition and practical global applications. — Explanation: The table shows satellites and human spaceflight, communications, weather observation, surveillance, and cooperation.

APWH-MCQ10-050 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Cold War rivalry could encourage technological innovation while also producing limited cooperation. — Explanation: Space programs involved competition, practical applications, surveillance, and cooperative projects.

APWH-MCQ10-051 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Energy transitions created new global supply-chain and environmental debates. — Explanation: Renewable expansion increased demand for critical minerals and broadened supply-chain concerns.

APWH-MCQ10-052 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Increased competition over mineral extraction, processing, and technology supply chains — Explanation: Higher mineral demand for batteries and electronics increased competition over extraction and supply chains.

APWH-MCQ10-053 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: To argue that renewable-energy supply chains should address local rights and environmental costs — Explanation: The statement demands consent, repair, local decision-making, and recognition of environmental costs.

APWH-MCQ10-054 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: “A share in decisions made far from our desert” — Explanation: This phrase directly challenges distant decision-making that affects local communities.

APWH-MCQ10-055 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: It frames globalization’s energy transition as requiring both technological change and attention to environmental justice. — Explanation: The statement supports new energy while demanding consent, repair, and community participation.

SERIES DO-NOT-REPEAT BANK UPDATE — APWH-MCQ10

- APWH-MCQ10-001–004: Unit 1; c. 1200–1450; Kamakura Japan/East Asia; original legal order; shogun, warrior land grants, summons, road guarding, precedent, estate stewards, temple fields; reasoning paths include purpose, land-service evidence, Buddhist estate context, warrior-law governance; source type: legal order; misconception targeted: treating medieval Japan as either purely imperial-court rule or disconnected from land-service obligations.

- APWH-MCQ10-005–008: Units 1 and 2; c. 1200–1450; Tenochtitlan/Mexica Mesoamerica; secondary-source urban description; lake islands, causeways, canals, markets, temples, palaces, cacao, cotton, obsidian, feathers, tribute provinces; reasoning paths include urban-state interpretation, regional exchange evidence, infrastructure and trade, state-market argument; source type: urban-material description; misconception targeted: assuming the Americas lacked large cities, market specialization, or infrastructure before 1450.

- APWH-MCQ10-009–012: Units 2 and 3; c. 1200–1450 and c. 1450–1750; Timurid Samarkand/Central Asia; described exchange-and-capital map; caravan routes from Iran, India, China, steppe, madrasas, workshops, astronomical instruments, artisans and scholars moved after conquest; reasoning paths include map interpretation, scientific evidence, conquest-state patronage context, imperial capital argument; map type: caravan-convergence and scholarly-capital map; misconception targeted: separating conquest from urban cultural patronage and specialist concentration.

- APWH-MCQ10-013–016: Unit 3; c. 1450–1750; Maratha western India/Deccan; original administrative letter; hill forts, grain stocks, cavalry captains, chauth collection, village headmen, hidden revenue, ministerial enforcement; reasoning paths include purpose, revenue evidence, geography and fort defense, military-local revenue system argument; source type: administrative-military letter; misconception targeted: treating Maratha power as only military or ignoring revenue and local intermediaries.

- APWH-MCQ10-017–020: Units 3 and 4; c. 1450–1750; Oyo/West Africa and Atlantic-linked coastal brokers; described palace wall panel; alaaḥin, royal umbrellas, cavalry figures, tribute bearers, cloth, beads, calabashes, road to forest towns and coastal brokers; reasoning paths include visual political authority, coastal-intermediary context, hierarchy evidence, inland state adaptation to commercial links; visual type: palace wall panel; misconception targeted: assuming Atlantic exchange immediately erased inland African political systems.

- APWH-MCQ10-021–024: Unit 4; c. 1450–1750; Jesuit Paraguay/Guaraní missions; original missionary report; mission towns, bells, prayer and labor, cattle, music, protection from slave raiders, governor's concern over priestly authority; reasoning paths include purpose, cultural transformation evidence, frontier coercion context, mission-protection-labor-authority argument; source type: missionary administrative report; misconception targeted: treating missions as either purely protective or completely separate from colonial labor and authority.

- APWH-MCQ10-025–028: Unit 5; c. 1750–1900; Taiping Rebellion/southern China; original religious-political proclamation; idols, landlords, poor, Heaven, equal fields, moral discipline, new kingdom, gendered labor rhetoric; reasoning paths include purpose, social inequality evidence, Qing crisis context, religious reform-rebellion argument; source type: rebel proclamation; misconception targeted: separating religious ideas from nineteenth-century social revolution.

- APWH-MCQ10-029–032: Unit 5; c. 1750–1900; central Europe/socialist labor politics; original workers' circular; factory bell, owners, contracts written by hunger, workers organizing across borders, steam and capital; reasoning paths include audience, unequal labor evidence, industrial capitalism context, transnational labor organization argument; source type: socialist workers' circular; misconception targeted: assuming industrial contracts automatically created equal freedom or that labor politics stayed national.

· APWH-MCQ10-033–036: Unit 6; c. 1750–1900; Tunisia/North Africa; debt and protectorate table; foreign loans, international debt commission, French protectorate, diplomatic and military pressure; reasoning paths include data interpretation, economic oversight evidence, finance-diplomacy-military imperialism context, informal-to-formal control argument; table type: fiscal pressure to protectorate chronology; misconception targeted: treating imperialism as only direct conquest or settler migration.

· APWH-MCQ10-037–040: Unit 6; c. 1750–1900; Zulu resistance/southern Africa; described battlefield sketch; Zulu crescent formation, shields, spears, British rifles and wagons, hills, messengers, dispersed units; reasoning paths include visual interpretation, military technology/tactics evidence, terrain and coordination, organized African resistance argument; visual type: battlefield sketch; misconception targeted: assuming African armies lacked organization or could not challenge industrial-era imperial armies.

· APWH-MCQ10-041–044: Unit 7; c. 1900–present; Anatolia and Aegean/Greek-Turkish conflict and population exchange; described displacement map; Greek and Turkish armies, burned coastal towns, compulsory movement of Orthodox Christians and Muslims; reasoning paths include map interpretation, state policy evidence, post-WWI nationalist border-making context, coercive reclassification argument; map type: postwar population-exchange map; misconception targeted: treating nationalist state-building as peaceful or population movement as voluntary.

· APWH-MCQ10-045: Unit 7; c. 1900–present; Atlantic convoy warfare/World War II; simplified table; submarine losses, convoy systems, radar, sonar, codebreaking, escort coordination, Allied shipping capacity; reasoning path includes data interpretation of technology and organization in total war; table type: naval warfare technology-response table; misconception targeted: ignoring logistics and technological adaptation in World War II.

· APWH-MCQ10-046–048: Unit 8; c. 1900–present; post-1945 international organization system; original global institution statement; council over conquest, collective security, non-self-governing territories, advancement of peoples; reasoning paths include purpose, colonial/dependent territory evidence, global institutions and self-government; source type: international organization statement; misconception targeted: assuming 1945 instantly ended colonial rule or that peacekeeping and decolonization debates were unrelated.

· APWH-MCQ10-049–050: Unit 8; c. 1900–present; Cold War space race/global technology; space activity table; first satellites, human spaceflight, communications, weather observation, military surveillance, cooperation amid competition; reasoning paths include data interpretation and argument about rivalry, innovation, and limited cooperation; table type: Cold War technology chronology; misconception targeted: treating space programs as purely scientific or unrelated to ideology and surveillance.

· APWH-MCQ10-051–055: Unit 9; c. 1900–present; renewable energy transition and critical minerals; global energy/minerals table plus original Indigenous community statement; solar/wind expansion, lithium/cobalt/rare earth demand, batteries, electronics, water use, grazing land, consent, repair, distant decision-making; reasoning paths include data interpretation, supply-chain process, purpose, local-rights evidence, environmental-justice argument; table/source type: energy transition data and community-rights statement; misconception targeted: treating clean-energy globalization as environmentally cost-free or disconnected from Indigenous land rights.
